
Land Acknowledgement

To demonstrate our ongoing commitment to reconciliation, we strive to take meaningful action to support positive change and progress in the communities we serve.

We acknowledge that our organization conducts its business and operates across the vast and diverse lands of what is now called Canada. We recognize that these lands are still home to many diverse First Nations, Métis and Inuit people. These lands are either subject to First Nations self-government under modern treaty, unceded and unsurrendered territories, or traditional territories from which First Nations, Métis and Inuit Peoples have been displaced, and we recognize the enduring relationship that exists between them and their lands. We wish to honour and express gratitude towards the Indigenous peoples who have, and will continue to, steward these lands.

As a Canadian healthcare organization, we recognize and acknowledge that Canada's history and legacy of colonialism has created health, social and economic inequities and disadvantages amongst First Nation, Métis, and Inuit people, including systemic racism within healthcare and other institutions. As an organization that is dedicated to equity, diversity, and inclusion, we have a role to play in reconciliation with Canada's Indigenous communities.

Visit our website for more information on commitment to reconciliation.

